Learning and Giving at the Same Time

A senior-level staffer at the Honolulu Board of Water Supply was offering to give us 240 hours of work for free, to meet the requirements of his practicum for a master’s degree in public administration at the University of Hawaii at Manoa.

Glenn Oyama was interested in learning more about how nonprofits work. He’d work for us if we could give him a project that he could start and bring to completion during those 240 hours.

Boy, could we! Linda Brock, our VP in charge of the planned September 2010 launch of PBS Hawaii’s new education initiative, Hiki Nō: First Statewide Student News Network of Hawaii, needed some important groundwork to be done.

We met Glenn and liked him right away. Linda asked him to gather and assess information about student digital-media programs and organize contacts at public, private and charter schools across the state of Hawaii.

Glenn had graduated from a local public school, Kalihi’s Farrington High, and working on the network appealed to him. He saw the broadcast and Web network as an opportunity for today’s students to strengthen real-world, transferable skills such as critical thinking and effective communication.

And so Glenn systematically, painstakingly and personably went about the job of organizing the school framework of Hiki Nō.

No problem finishing in 240 hours! Glenn moved on to our Development Department. In all, he assisted PBS Hawaii part-time over a 10-month period!

“Humble, hard-working, collaborative and discerning, he earned the deep appreciation and admiration of staffers.”
Humble, hard-working, collaborative and discerning, he earned the deep appreciation and admiration of staffers. And then he thanked us for the experience!

“I really liked working here,” Glenn told me. “It was fun—you have great people and it’s a flat organization.”

“Flat” is business-speak for our horizontal organizational structure, with fewer layers of reporting and authority.

Glenn’s employer, by virtue of its size and nature, is hierarchical.

Our flat model works for us because we’re small and we prize timely information and agile coordination throughout departments.

Glenn obviously does well in both types of organizational structures.

He has our enduring thanks for plowing the field for our Hiki Nō student news network and for bringing insight and energy to other projects.

We’ll follow his career with those new initials after his name, signifying his new academic achievement: M.P.A.

Mahalo nui loa, Glenn!

Amber DeMarco is a graduate of Waianae High School (Class of 2008) and is currently attending Leeward Community College and working part-time at PBS Hawaii. She’s also a product of Searider Productions, Waianae High School’s award-winning media program.

Recently Amber and three of her WHS classmates were invited to Washington, D.C. to accept the Rudy Tokiwa Memorial Award for “True Courage,” the documentary they produced with Hawaii resident Eddie Ichiyama, a member of the legendary 442nd Regimental Combat Team during WWII. The award put the Hawaii students in the forefront of the Memorial Day weekend activities in Washington, D.C.

We asked Amber to share her experience by contributing the following article to the PBS Hawaii magazine.

“Shopping” – shopping was the first thing that came to my mind when I thought about my trip to Washington, D.C. I knew I would be surrounded by an environment filled with history, but I had learned about all the D.C. monuments and history in class. I wanted to see what the malls were like! Oh boy was I wrong. Once I arrived in Washington, D.C. I traded malls for museums, clothes for... conversation and price tags for photos. It was without a doubt one of the most significant trips I had ever taken. I will probably never be able to choose my favorite part of the trip. There were just so many amazing things that I got to experience. Perhaps the most important part for me was the Stories of Service Legacy Banquet. At this banquet we were placed at a table with Al Tortolano, a World War II veteran. He was one of the soldiers who was part of what is most commonly known as the “Lost Battalion”. This meant that he was one of the men rescued by Eddie Ichiyama, the subject of our interview and veteran of the 442nd Regimental Combat Team.

Throughout the trip I had many conversations with Mr. Tortolano and attended a handful of events where he was a featured speaker. In every conversation and every speech he expressed his sincere gratitude to the men of the 442nd. Because of their courage, he survived. I realize how fortunate I am to have been given the opportunity to meet and speak with both of these men. Eddie Ichiyama and Al Tortolano served our country, and hearing each man’s personal account of this famous WWII rescue is an honor and privilege I will never forget.

The most impressive part is that I didn’t hear it from a reporter or a family member. It came directly from the memory of the “rescued” and the “rescuer.” No textbook or history class could have taught me what I learned from these two men. The most memorable conversation I had while in Washington, D.C. was with Senator Dan Inouye. When we arrived at his office we were told he was out of the state. But, while we were speaking with his assistant, Van, I saw a familiar face walk past the doorway. “That’s the Senator”, I said. Van excused herself and soon came back saying the Senator was busy but he may be able to spend a few minutes with us. We were told to prepare a few questions for Senator Inouye.

Within a short time the Senator met with us. Our “few minutes” eventually turned into a half-hour conversation, and we didn’t even use our questions because the talk was so casual and it just continued to flow. If I were to pick a part of the conversation that had the most impact on me it would be what the Senator said at the end. He started to talk to us about the war and his experience as part of the “442”, fighting with fellow veterans like Eddie Ichiyama. Senator Inouye’s message to us was not about bravery or serving one’s country.

He spoke to us about what it means to be fair and not to judge people by the color of their skin or the shape of their eyes. This was something that was taught to me a long time ago. But it meant even more to hear it from someone who really lived the experience of being judged unfairly and yet overcame that discrimination. It was like he took us back in time, and we got to relive history through his memories.

The most exciting part of the trip was sightseeing. Our group had just spent three whole days with veterans, listening to their stories, and walking with them in the National Memorial Day Parade. We had a whole new perspective and respect for those who dedicated and gave their lives to protect our country. So being able to go to the Lincoln Memorial and see that tribute to one of the greatest Presidents in our history, and to stand at the exact spot where Dr. King gave his “I Have a Dream” speech – it was all so amazing.

Visiting the Vietnam Memorial and seeing the magnitude of that wall made me wonder – in all the history classes I have taken, this war had not been a major topic. Why? This seriously upset me. I took a look at some of those names for a long while and eventually a family came up beside me. They started looking for a name so I stepped aside to give them more room. Their fingers scrolled the wall, and eventually stopped on one of the names I had been looking at earlier.

My trip to our nation’s capitol taught me to never forget and always respect and appreciate the men and women who dedicate their lives to defend America and to ensure the freedom of all of its citizens. For that I will always be grateful.

The fast-paced science magazine series NOVA scienceNOW returns to PBS Hawaii this summer with a 10-week season full of fresh new perspectives, fascinating scientists, cutting-edge innovations and provocative stories from the frontlines of science, technology and medicine. Hosted by renowned author and astrophysicist Neil deGrasse Tyson, the series also introduces a new correspondent this season, Ziya Tong (inset), former host and producer of WIRED SCIENCE.
Programming highlights featured this summer on NOVA scienceNOW include:

Synthetic Diamonds A blindfolded Tyson is led to a top-secret “diamond farm” to investigate breakthroughs in the engineering of artificial diamonds. Indistinguishable from the real thing, these glittering, scientifically mastered creations may one day adorn more than ring fingers. They could replace silicon transistors in everything from supercomputers to high-speed electric trains.

Hunting Hidden Planets NOVA scienceNOW visits astronomers on the brink of finding “another Earth” in our galaxy with a new planet-hunting machine: the Kepler telescope. This and other ingenious new techniques could turn up hundreds of Earth-like worlds and finally answer the age-old question: Are we alone?

The Sounds of Science Do you have what it takes to be a rock star? Neil deGrasse Tyson tests his singing talents in a segment using “AutoTune,” the controversial computer pitch-correction software that turns sour notes into sweet ones.

The Dinosaur Plague Renowned paleontologist George Poinar — whose study of extinct creatures exquisitely preserved in amber partly inspired Jurassic Park — has announced his discovery of multiple clues to parasitic pandemics that could have been just as instrumental in wiping out the dinosaurs as the hypothesized asteroid impact.

Anthrax Attack NOVA scienceNOW goes behind the scenes to explore the science that went into solving the case of the deadly anthrax attacks after 9/11 and the ingenious technique researchers developed to pinpoint the source. This method also has the potential to identify the microbes responsible for everything from food-borne poisonings to deadly epidemics.

Family memories, cultural enrichment and great summer time fun!

Jeff and Dew-Anne Langcaon, along with their children, Katherine and Samantha, are using their PBS Hawaii Aloha Diners Club Card to create fun family memories this summer. “The girls are growing up so quickly. We really wanted to take time to do things together as a family.”

The PBS Hawaii Aloha Diners Club Card has some great discounts to places that we can all enjoy together, like the Contemporary Museum, Honolulu Zoo, Polynesian Cultural Center, and Waikiki Aquarium,” says father, Jeff.

He adds, “My father was stationed on the Battleship Missouri, which was why I wrote a children’s book about visiting that memorial.

I was pleased to see that the booklet contains a 2-for-1 coupon to the historical battleship.”

The Langcaons are careful about how they spend their time and resources. That’s why they’ve come to appreciate their PBS Hawaii Aloha Diners Club Card.

“Jeff and I have always supported PBS Hawaii because we believe in the educational and cultural enrichment it provides to everyone in the community.

Receiving the Aloha Diners Club Card was a bonus on top of all the great programs and services they provide,” said Dew-Anne.

You can also experience the great savings on dining and entertainment for a new or renewing donation of $65 or more. For more information, call (808) 973-1187 or visit us on the Web:
“As a former teacher, I feel strongly that children have the potential to be heroes. They are the citizens of the future – each one has so much to give. Public television encourages the idealism of children.”

“By remembering public television in my estate plan, I am leaving a rich legacy to the children of the future; we can create it.”

“One person can make such a difference.”

– India Harris, PBS Hawaii Supporter

AMERICAN MASTERS
Garrison Keillor: The Man on the Radio in the Red Shoes
Wednesday, July 1 | 8pm

Lake Wobegon — where the women are strong, the men are good looking and all the children are above average — has become America’s collective hometown, visited weekly for the past 40 years on a fictional radio program that creates bona fide nostalgia. With his “Prairie Home Companion,” Keillor became our national philosopher, filling the empty shoes of Will Rogers and Mark Twain, through his running commentary about the human condition and the social politic. With biting wit, a quirky perspective and an uncanny ability to home in on the pulse of America, Keillor’s themes and characters are somehow familiar to us all. For more than a year, AMERICAN MASTERS followed this great raconteur — and his motley crew of actors, musicians and technical staff — as he criss-crossed the country, broadcasting, recording and revealing himself.
PBS Hawaii is on the air seven days a week from 5 am to midnight. Viewers with cable service also have access to overnight programming. Viewers with cable service and high-definition (HD) TVs may watch PBS Hawaii in high-definition on Oceanic Time Warner Channel 1010.

NATURE Kilauea: Mountain of Fire

Kilauea, on Hawaii’s Big Island, is the world’s most active volcano. Its latest eruption began in 1983 and hasn’t stopped. Since that time, it has created 544 acres of new land and consumed 200 homes. The most spectacular moment of creation is when lava pours into the ocean creating new land; it is here that filmmaker Paul Atkins finds himself getting a shot few have ever filmed — the cataclysmic meeting of 2,000-degree lava and 75-degree ocean water — a sight to behold.

Out from the Shadows: The Story of Irene Joliot-Curie and Frederick Joliot-Curie
This documentary relates the life and times of Irène Joliot-Curie, the eldest daughter of Marie and Pierre Curie, and her husband, Frédéric, who made a contribution to nuclear physics that marked the beginning of a new era in the relationship of man towards matter. Filmed with use of Curie family photos, home movies, and interviews. Julianne Moore narrates.

Frederick & Irene Joliot-Curie
November 2006, are now the subject of international emergency research as scientists race to discover the cause of this ecological disaster.

8:00 Masterpiece Mystery! Miss Marple: Why Didn’t They Ask Evans? The last words of a dying man lead the sole witness to team with a beautiful socialite to find out if foul play was involved. Miss Marple joins them as they land in a hotbed of homicide and intrigue.

filmmakers takes a vérité look at Oxford's Mulberry Bush School for emotionally disturbed children. Mulberry’s heroically forbearing staff greets extreme, sometimes violent, behavior with consolation and gentle restraint. Kim Longinotto’s unblinking camera discovers in this strategy an arduous process and nearly unhinged environment, but also the daily dramas of troubled kids trying to survive and the moments of hope they achieve with Mulberry’s determined team.

ASCENT OF MONEY

WEDNESDAYS | 9PM

In this four-part series, Harvard historian Niall Ferguson delves deep into how the complex system of global finance evolved over the centuries, how money has shaped the course of human affairs and how the mechanics of this economic system work to create seemingly unlimited wealth — or catastrophic loss.
