Kanikapila in our 'Back Yard'

It was a good-time back yard jam session in the PBS Hawaii studio for the premiere of Let's Play Music: Slack Key with Cyril Pahinui and Friends. With hay scattered everywhere and palaka-style tablecloths covering the picnic tables, the musicians played in harmony surrounded by PBS Hawaii family and friends.

We would like to extend a special thank you to all who helped make this a success, including Roland Cazimero, Cyril Pahinui, Greg Sardinha, Palani Vaughan, Peter Moon Jr., Alana Burk, Mike Burk and Rhonda Osurman – Mahalo!

Emily Pick values the importance of supporting PBS Hawaii because it aligns with her own philosophies as a business owner and mother of two. In addition to traditional programming, PBS Hawaii KIDS offers a variety of learning tools the entire family can enjoy. See pages 4-5.

One of Hawaii's Best-Kept Secrets

Leslie Wilcox
PBS Hawaii
President and CEO

Call it 443.
Or PBS Hawaii KIDS.
Or one of the best-kept secrets in Hawaii: a television channel that runs high-quality children's programming around the clock, without commercials.

It's for parents who want their young children to be positively occupied – learning while having fun.

"My 4-year-old son Bain loves it," says Makaha mother Ashley Nii. "It's part of our routine. After Bain has dinner and a bath, we read a book, play with LEGO or tell stories. Before he goes to bed, we turn it on – it's relaxing for him to watch 443.

"And it's totally safe," she says, "I can pop in and out of the room. I don't worry one bit when he's watching PBS."

443 is PBS Hawaii KIDS channel 443 on Oceanic Time Warner Cable. PBS Hawaii KIDS is also available on Hawaiian Telcom 96 and through over-the-air broadcast signals at 11.2.

We don't have a marketing budget to promote PBS Hawaii KIDS, but parents manage to find it.

"Sure, Bain's cousins watch it too," Ashley says.

By evening, our main PBS Hawaii TV channel has switched from children's shows to programming geared for adults. But hundreds of channels away on the digital dial, PBS Hawaii KIDS stays focused on keiki: The Cat in the Hat Knows a Lot About That!, Curious George, Sid the Science Kid, Wild Kratts, Sesame Street, Super Why!, Daniel Tiger's Neighborhood, The Electric Company and more.

"We don't expect children would be watching at 2:00 am, of course," says station programmer John Kovacich. "The overnight programs are a placeholder for the channel."

But John says the wee hours serve as a good time for parents to set their DVR to record their children's favorite shows. John, who lives in Honolulu, also has a 4-year-old son in the home, Mani.

Like Ashley and her significant other in Makaha, John and his wife allow their child to watch Curious George and other shows on our main channel while having breakfast and getting ready for pre-school.

At the very end of the day, the children spend time with our sister cable channel, PBS Hawaii KIDS.

For homes that have more than one TV set, you may find parents watching evening adult fare on our main channel or another channel, while the keiki are around the corner happily watching PBS Hawaii KIDS.

Programmer John also works to ensure there are choices for children during the day. He has Arthur, aimed at older children up to 8 years old, airing at noon on our main channel. At the same time, over on PBS Hawaii KIDS, he schedules Curious George, designed with 2- to 5-year-olds in mind.

"Essentially PBS Hawaii offers two options for children during most of the hours between 5:00 am and 5:00 pm," John says.

Ashley is relieved that her son never picks up bad language nor is exposed to things inappropriate for his age on PBS Hawaii KIDS.

I'd like to invite you to check out this dedicated PBS Hawaii KIDS channel. It's not meant to be a secret, and we encourage you to spread the word – or the number: 443!

A hui hou (until next time),

Leslie

An Enduring Legacy

PBS Hawaii KIDS Fosters Local Business Support

There was no avoiding it – the time had come. On this day, the normally intrepid four-year-old Gigi Burks would face her biggest fear: going to the doctor's office to get a shot.

But she was ready. Daniel Tiger had taught her a trick for staying brave in scary situations. And if he could do it, so could she.

"Remember what Daniel did," said Jami Burks to her daughter, referencing one of Gigi's favorite PBS KIDS shows, Daniel Tiger's Neighborhood. "Close your eyes and think of something happy."

When the nurse entered the room, Gigi closed her eyes and thought of her dad, Ron. And before she knew it, the worst was over.

"The nurse said Gigi was the best patient she's had all day," said Jami. "And all because of what she learned from watching Daniel Tiger's Neighborhood."

Jami is the Executive Director of the Makana Aloha Foundation, a Maui-based family foundation whose generosity supports PBS Hawaii's HIKI NŌ state-wide student news network. As strong proponents of life-long learning, the foundation recognizes that PBS Kids programming and local student learning initiatives like HIKI NŌ are vital to ensuring that all of Hawaii's children have access to quality education.

The Cudiamat family enjoy learning together

According to a recent study, PBS' children's programming is the number one reason people cite for choosing to support and watch public television. Over the past year, the number of local businesses and organizations supporting PBS Hawaii's children's programs has tripled, due in large part to philanthropic-minded local business owners who understand the value of curriculum-focused programming because they themselves grew up watching Sesame Street, The Electric Company and Mister Rogers' Neighborhood.

"My husband and I both grew up watching the kid's shows on PBS Hawaii, and now my children are growing up watching them, too," said Cheryl Cudiamat, mother of four. Cheryl is the owner of Keiki Care Center of Hawaii, a preschool supporting the local broadcast of The Cat in the Hat Knows a Lot About That! "We love the nostalgic feeling we get when we watch PBS shows with our kids."

Keiki Care's support of The Cat in the Hat also yields significant marketing benefits for the Pearl City, Oahu preschool which Cheryl and her husband, Jeffrey, founded in 2008.

"Together, the PBS and Dr. Seuss brands are synonymous with education, so we wanted to make sure people knew that we supported it," said Cheryl. "I know parents watch it because we watch it. PBS Hawaii is the only station we feel comfortable letting our kids watch with 100-percent no worries. It is an opportunity to watch television as a family.”

Approximately 50 percent of parents with kids under six years of age watch PBS KIDS with their children, with 88 percent of adults agreeing that PBS is a trusted, safe place for children to watch television compared to 34 percent for cable TV.

“There’s nothing that happens on PBS Hawaii in the morning that makes me say ‘I’m going to have to stop and explain something to my daughters,’” said Emily Pick. She and her husband, Tom, operate My Gym Children’s Fitness Centers in Kailua and Aina Haina. “This is a total dork mom thing to say, but I love when Evangeline watches Super Why! and yells out ‘Y’ or ‘O’ in the living room. It makes me happy that she’s learning letters that way.”

My Gym, a non-competitive gymnastics-based program that encourages healthy and active living for kids and parents, is a brand-new supporter of PBS Hawaii KIDS programming.

“We’ve been watching PBS Hawaii since I had my first one, so I know that it’s something that touches a lot of homes and families. PBS is on whenever I take my daughters to friends’ houses for playdates,” said Emily. “It’s something I feel confident in not only as a parent but as a business owner because it ties in the same philosophies we teach at My Gym, in terms of being respectful to other people, taking care of ourselves, and our communities.”

It takes a community pitching in to provide PBS Hawaii’s trusted transmedia platform. With the generous support of local businesses, foundations and individuals, PBS Hawaii carries forth public television’s enduring legacy of children’s programming that educates and entertains.

PBS KIDS Mobile Apps Make Learning Fun, Anywhere, Anytime, All the Time

By Sara DeWitt

Vice President, PBS KIDS Interactive

As our media world changes, kids are finding favorite content in new ways: from their parents’ smartphones while sitting in the car or grocery cart, to laptops at home and school, to the family iPad or tablet. PBS KIDS believes these new platforms give us new opportunities for teaching and learning, so we’ve already created apps for shows like Super Why!, Daniel Tiger’s Neighborhood, and Dino- saur Train for iPhone, iPad,

Android, Kindle and Nook. With the PBS KIDS video app you can stream clips or full-length episodes of the PBS KIDS line-up, as well as check TV times so that your family can catch favorite shows on the big screen at home.

Sara, David and Benjamin

The new PBS Parents: Play & Learn app strives to give busy parents tips for playing with keiki while on the go, including ideas for engaging activities away from the screen. Organized by location – such as a restaurant, grocery store, or riding in a car or bus – the app offers suggestions for skill-building games you can play together, such as letter-finding games, sign-reading puzzles or sorting challenges with those sugar packets on the café table.

All PBS KIDS apps are regularly researched to make sure they are appropriate and educational for young keiki. In fact, this month on Oahu, a research team is testing the PBS Parents app with young families. You can find all of the PBS KIDS apps at pbskids.org/mobile.

Editor’s note: Since 2011, Sara DeWitt has been “stationed” at PBS Hawaii while her husband, Lt. Col. David Henry, was assigned to the United States Pacific Command (USPACOM). This month, Sara, David and their son, Benjamin return to the mainland. Mahalo, Sara, for sharing your insights. A hui hou!

PBS Hawaii's live broadcast, Let's Play Music! Slack Key with Cyril Pahinui and Friends was also available on our website via live streaming. Here is what online viewers had to say:

This email came from a viewer who watched Leslie's interview with transgendered fashion designer Ari Southiphong (Andy South):

Tonight's Long Story Short with Ariyaphon Southiphong was among the most moving, honest, courageous conversations I have been privileged to experience. The eyes were damp but the voice was swelling with a deep and powerful sense of Hooray! You were wonderful in being genuine, frank, compassionate as you moved the interview through what easily could have been discomfort, even consternation. I expect Ari came away with a strong sense of mahalo for being so affirmed in her own courage and honesty. Thank you for your cheerful and humanly affirming rigor and aloha.

Mary Ann Manahan

PBS Hawaii Board Member

PBS Hawaii welcomes Mary Ann Manahan to our

Board of Directors. She is a project coordinator for the State Department of Human Services, focusing on access to language programs for people with limited English proficiency. Manahan has 15 years experience in financial services. Prior to her current position, she was a vice president at AXA Advisors, recruiting and training financial services representatives. She served Prudential Financial in the same capacity, where she was also named Rookie of the Year and became a member of the Million Dollar Round Table in 2007. She has degrees in economics and finance from the De La Salle University in Manila. Manahan was born and raised in the Philippines and now calls Kalihi home.

Master Takabayashi Goes to Washington

Akira Takabayashi, an eighth grader from Chiefess

Kamakaha Middle School, recently returned home from an impressive performance at the 2013 Scripps National Spelling Bee held in Washington, D.C.

After he won the aio Hawaii State Spelling Bee in March, aio and Grove Farm partnered to send Akira and his family on a 10-day trip to compete against 281 spellers from across the world. The competition included spellers from Jamaica, South Korea, China, Canada and many more foreign nations.

On May 29, Akira aced the preliminary rounds by spelling gynarchy and oyez correctly. He also passed the vocabulary test by defining calypso (a type of music) and mobilier (relating to household furniture).

"On the stage I only had to spell two words, those were easy," Akira said. "But on the computer test there were hard words."

Unfortunately Akira didn't qualify for the semifinals once computer test results were factored into the total score, but overall it was a remarkable experience that he'll never forget.

Congratulations, Akira, for representing Hawaii proudly!

Althorp, childhood home and final resting place of Princess Diana, is currently the home of Diana's brother, Charles, the 9th Earl Spencer. Nineteen generations of Spencers have presided over this grand estate for more than 500 years. The Spencer dynasty has produced politicians, military heroes, dukes and duchesses and will one day furnish Britain with a king: Diana's son, Prince William. Althorp House has hosted some of the kingdom's most distinguished guests and its rooms have witnessed scenes of great celebration, including the marriage of the current earl, who takes viewers on a personal tour around the noble manor that's first of all his family home.

8:00 MASTERPIECE MYSTERY! Endeavour, Series 1: Girl DC Morse (Shaun Evans) and DI Thursday (Roger Allam) investigate burgled gas meters, the sudden death of a young secretarial student and a string of Post Office robberies, confounding the solution to a pair of violent murders. 10:00 POV Herman's House Herman Wallace may be the longest-serving prisoner in solitary confinement in the United States. He's spent more than 40 years in a 6-by-9-foot cell in Louisiana. Imprisoned in 1967 for a robbery he admits, he was subsequently sentenced to life for a killing he vehemently denies. This film is a moving account of the remarkable expression his struggle found in an unusual project proposed by artist Jackie Sumell. The film takes you inside the duo's unlikely 12-year friendship, revealing the transformative power of art.

PBS Hawaii Presents
The Untold Story: Internment of Japanese Americans in Hawaii

Thursday,
July 25 8:00 pm

"This was probably the most fulfilling project I have directed. [It] could have been easily lost and forgotten."

Ryan Kawamoto

Writer and director,
The Untold Story

The documentary reveals the little known stories of several detainees held at World War II internment camps located throughout the islands. Produced by the Japanese Cultural Center of Hawaii (JCCH), this film was written and directed by Ryan Kawamoto, a freelance producer for Long Story Short with Leslie Wilcox and HIKI NŌ. PBS Hawaii interviewed Kawamoto to learn more about the film and the impact he hoped to achieve.

PBS Hawaii: How did you get involved with The Untold Story?

Ryan Kawamoto: About three years ago, JCCH hired me to do a short film about the Honouliuli internment camp out in Ewa [Oahu]. After we completed that film, we realized that there's so much information about the other camps that was left out of the short film. No one really directly talks about the thirteen camps [in Hawaii].

PBSH: How did that affect your ability to find people to interview?

RK: There were very few survivors that I could interview. The two that appear in the film have since passed away. The historical re-enactments in the film came straight from the translated works. A lot of it came from the writings that the Japanese Cultural Center recently translated to English. That became a big basis for filling in part of the story.

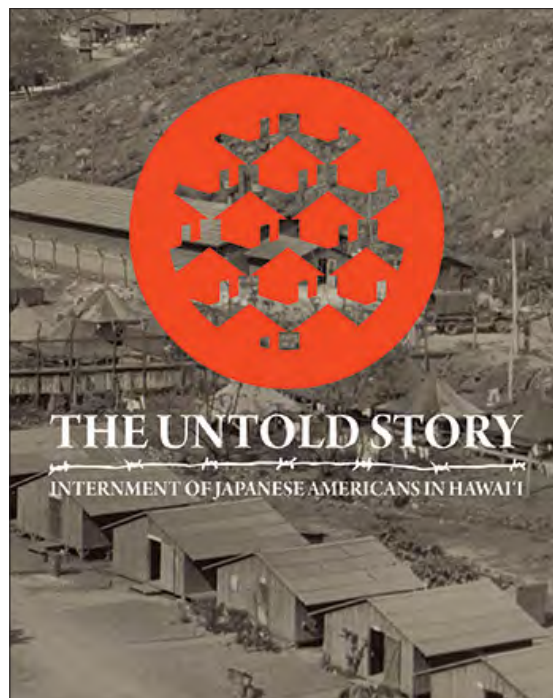

PBSH: How did performing the re-enactments affect the actors?

RK: They all got a really good sense of what it must have felt like. Some of us got really emotional while we were filming those scenes. It really was a powerful experience.

PBSH: What do you hope people take away from seeing The Untold Story?

RK: The message of this film is not to complain about the injustices, but to remind people that these sorts of things have happened in the past, and they're happening now, so we all need to be vigilant about these civil liberty issues. Unfortunately, you can see echoes of this in our society and our country, like what happened to Muslim Americans after 9/11, gay rights, bullying in schools – discriminating against one particular group of people because they're different. In Hawaii, the Japanese American Citizens League is working on the plight of the Micronesian community.

This was probably the most fulfilling project I have directed. This is a story that could have been easily lost and forgotten. I'm the writer and director, but there are a lot of other people that contributed to make this happen because of the research and preservation efforts that went into it for years and years.

Avi Mannis

Vice President of Marketing, Hawaiian Airlines

"One of my favorite programs broadcast on PBS Hawaii was Na Mele: Na Lani Eha from Iolani Palace," explains Avi Mannis, Vice President of Marketing for Hawaiian Airlines. "Being able to see our local Hawaiian artists performing from within Iolani Palace was such a rare opportunity."

Hawaiian Airlines' support of PBS Hawaii includes an eclectic mix of programs such as Curious George, Long Story Short and Na Mele. "We support PBS Hawaii because we are dedicated to ensuring that Hawaii has a platform for a diverse range of programming," continues Avi, "from public affairs to children's programming, and to the support of local artists."

Mahalo to Hawaiian Airlines for your longtime support of public television in Hawaii. If you or your business would like to become a PBS Hawaii community partner, contact Tatsu Sasaki at tsasaki@pbshawaii.org or (808) 973-1990.

HIKI NŌ The Nation's First Statewide Student News Network PRESENTED ON PBS HAWAII BY BANK OF HAWAII AND HMSA

Unique Perspectives from Hawaii's Youth

A rural community is up in arms about genetically modified crops being grown right behind one of the district's major public high schools. A gay male cheerleader reflects on mixed reactions when he "came out," and the support he received from his coach and teammates. A battered island once used as a target for military exercises is being restored by volunteers, one plant at a time. A young journalist born in the internet age discovers that true connectivity happens face-to-face between regulars at a slow-brewing coffee house.

While these might sound like stories from Frontline or PBS NewsHour, they were actually all features from season four of HIKI NŌ: The Nation's First Statewide Student News Network.

On the air since February 2011, HIKI NŌ is now showing signs of maturing journalistically, and it's not that students are parroting their adult counterparts in traditional media outlets. HIKI NŌ journalists bring a unique perspective to these stories because, in many cases, their generation has the most to gain or lose from the outcome of issues like the GMO debate. To look at key issues through the eyes of Hawaii's youth, you can now watch individual HIKI NŌ stories online by going to vimeo.com/channels/hikino.
